- WHO: Occupational therapists, Physiotherapists, Speech therapists, Community health workers, Social workers, Practitioners, Teachers and Parents of children with disabilities.
- WHY: Historically people with disabilities have been marginalized, excluded and institutionalized; the medical model understanding of disability has contributed significantly to this understanding. The Let's Talk Disability programme promotes the social model understanding of disability, and the understanding and identifying of barriers to inclusion for persons with disabilities and their families. Highlighting barriers instead of the condition of a person's body begins to empower participants in seeing themselves as change makers towards building inclusive communities.
- WHAT: This programme intends to raise awareness of disability and to stimulate local conversations about the social model of disability, inclusion and the rights of people with disabilities. It also provides an opportunity to explore personal and communal preconceived ideas about disability and facilitates a reimagining of these through facilitating a space where various stakeholders can share experiences, learn and problem solve together.
